Temple City Councilmember Ed Chen Appointed to the League of California Cities Public Safety Policy Committee

Temple City, CA – The City of Temple City is proud to announce the appointment of Councilmember Ed Chen to the League of California Cities (CalCities) Public Safety Policy Committee. Appointed by CalCities President Lynne B. Kennedy, his term will run through the conclusion of the 2025 CalCities Annual Conference.

The Public Safety Policy Committee is a vital body tasked with reviewing and shaping policies on critical public safety topics, including law enforcement, fire services, disaster preparedness, and emergency communications. Councilmember Chen will serve alongside leaders from cities across California to develop innovative solutions and advocate for effective public safety measures at the state and local levels.

“Public safety is a top priority for every community,” said Temple City Mayor Cynthia Sternquist. “As a police officer, Councilmember Chen provides a valuable public safety perspective and will ensure Temple City’s residents are well represented.”

Councilmember Chen brings a wealth of experience to this role, including his service as a police officer and 14 years as a Los Angeles County Sheriff’s Reserve Deputy. His appointment reinforces Temple City’s commitment to proactive leader and civic collaboration in matters of public safety.

The League of California Cities represents over 480 municipalities, advocating for policies that strengthen local government and improve the quality of life for all Californians. The Public Safety Policy Committee plays a critical role in shaping CalCities’ advocacy efforts, ensuring that the voices of local governments are heard on issues that directly impact communities.
